ACCLAIMED NEW YORK CHOREOGRAPHER COMES TO GW

Daniel McCusker, a New York City-based dancer and choreographer, is guest-artist-in-residence this fall at The George Washington University Department of Human Kinetics and Leisure Studies (HKLS), courtesy of its Dance Production Group headed by Maida Withers. Kathy McCarty, an alumnus of the HKLS dance department, will perform in McCusker's work and act as his assistant during the residency this month.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

GW TELEVISION HOSTS WORLD FOOD DAY TELECONFERENCE

This year's fourth annual World Food Day Observance, Tuesday, Oct. 16, will feature a three-hour "national town meeting" via satellite hookup, which will originate at George Washington University's Television studios. More than 130 colleges and universities in all 50 states will receive the signal and take part in the teleconference, which will discuss problems of world hunger. Sponsors believe this is the largest university teleconference ever held.

"It's a pilot effort in satellite broadcasting for GW Television, and it's great to be linked with such a prominent program," said Frank J. Kavanaugh, GWTV executive producer. "When GW Television was designed, we envisioned that it would reach beyond the D.C. area and in fact, one day go national and international--which we are now doing."

"For the university, it's an opportunity to show how GW's boundaries can touch all 50 states," said Lee Hunter, GWTV general manager.

The teleconference will begin at 12 noon in the GWTV studios, and will feature a panel of six speakers, including Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block and Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger. This one hour opening presentation will focus on the impact of U.S. policies on world hunger and the world food economy, the current food crisis in Africa, the role of women in agriculture, and a review of progress in hunger elimination since the 1974 World Food Conference.

This will be followed by a second hour of activities at each of the college receiving sites, and a final hour of discussion with callers at the sites phoning in to the GW studios to speak with panel members.

World Food Day, now in its fourth year and observed in 150 countries, marks the anniversary of the founding of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) in 1945. It is sponsored in the United States by the Department of Agriculture, the Agency for International Development, and a coalition of 330 private voluntary organizations which comprise the National Committee for World Food Day. The teleconference is being arranged in cooperation with the National University Teleconference Network (NUTN).

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER TO DEDICATE THE JACOB BURNS
LAW LIBRARY AT THE G.W. NATIONAL LAW CENTER

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will give the address at the dedication of the Jacob Burns Law Library of The George Washington University National Law Center on Thursday, Oct. 18. The outdoor ceremony will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the National Law Center, 716 20th St., N.W.

While honoring Jacob Burns, a graduate (LL.B. With Distinction, 1924; LL.D., 1970), honorary trustee and long time benefactor of the University, the dedication also marks the completion of an expansion and renovation of the Jacob Burns Law Library, which was part of a $16.7 million renovation of the National Law Center facilities.

"We are proud of these new facilities and of the alumni, student and faculty support that made them possible," said Dean Jerome A. Barron of the National Law Center. "Now, at last, the National Law Center has the house that its reputation and achievement merit."

Increasing the library space by almost 35 percent, the changes in the law library consolidated the collections, study areas and library administrative offices, and added a large reading room which spans the entire second floor of Stockton Hall and connects Lerner Hall directly to the library. The library collection currently includes more than 300,000 volumes, and is especially strong in administrative and regulatory material and congressional coverage.

The entire building program increased space in the National Law Center by 42 percent. The new buildings have a new moot courtroom, a main library reading room, 13 new classrooms, student lounge space, and new quarters for the law school's clinical program, which serves the elderly and indigent in Washington's inner city.

LAW LIBRARY AT THE G.W. NATIONAL LAW CENTER

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will give the address at the dedication of the Jacob Burns Law Library of The George Washington University National Law Center on Thursday, Oct. 18. The outdoor ceremony will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the National Law Center, 716 20th St., N.W.

While honoring Jacob Burns, a graduate (LL.B. With Distinction, 1924; LL.D., 1970), honorary trustee and long time benefactor of the University, the dedication also marks the completion of an expansion and renovation of the Jacob Burns Law Library, which was part of a $16.7 million renovation of the National Law Center facilities.

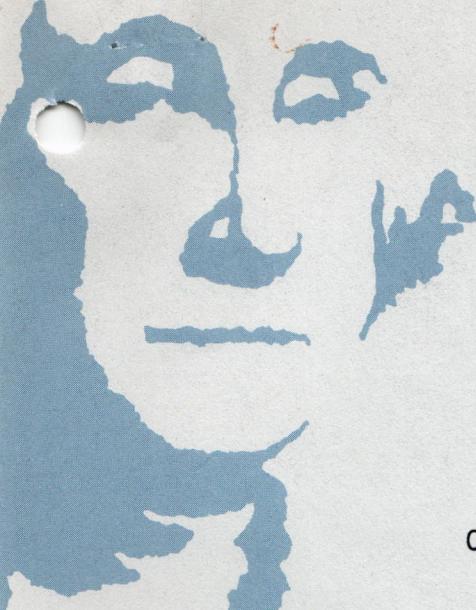

"We are proud of these new facilities and of the alumni, student and faculty support that made them possible," said Dean Jerome A. Barron of the National Law Center. "Now, at last, the National Law Center has the house that its reputation and achievement merit."

Increasing the library space by almost 35 percent, the changes in the law library consolidated the collections, study areas and library administrative offices, and added a large reading room which spans the entire second floor of Stockton Hall and connects Lerner Hall directly to the library. The library collection currently includes more than 300,000 volumes, and is especially strong in administrative and regulatory material and congressional coverage.

The entire building program increased space in the National Law Center by 42 percent. The new buildings have a new moot courtroom, a main library reading room, 13 new classrooms, student lounge space, and new quarters for the law school's clinical program, which serves the elderly and indigent in Washington's inner city.

A New York attorney specializing in corporate law, Dr. Burns was for many years Chairman of the Board of the USV Pharmaceutical Corporation and a Director of Revlon, Inc. He was appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court (First Division) of New York to the Committee on Character and Fitness, of which he is now Vice-Chairman, and he also served as a member of the Committee on Grievances of the New York State Bar Association. He was active for many years in the affairs of the New York County Lawyers' Association, and served on its Board of Directors.
